ABSTRACT

Information on cooperative education programs gathered by survey is presented. Listed are 992 programs operational with 459 junior-college programs and 533 four-year-college programs. In addition to listing the colleges and universities with such programs, six categories of information about the institution and the program are provided if known. The categories are: (1) institutional level; (2) the curricula that have the cooperative plan; (3) the length of the cooperative workterm; (4) the number of workterms provided by the program; (5) the number of years required for the degree; and (6) whether or not degree credit taking the place of credits earned through the classroom is given based on cooperative work experience. In addition, the listing notes whether the program is fully operational or recently put into operation, and includes the enrollment for the 1977-78 academic year. The listing is in chart form, by state. (Author/MSE)

Cooperative education is an educational plan which incorporates productive work as a regular part of the student's curriculum. The first program of cooperative education was initiated in 1906 at the University of Cincinnati. A number of other colleges and universities have since adopted the plan; however, the majority of the cooperative education programs have been implemented during the past decade. In 1961, only 65 programs were identified throughout the United States. The first edition of this pamphlet (1973) listed 567 programs in the United States and Canada, the second edition (1974) listed 775 programs, the third edition (1975) listed 970 programs, the fourth edition (1976) listed 1,030 programs, and the fifth edition (1977) listed 1,057 programs. The current edition (1978) lists 992 programs, of which 932 are known to be operational with 459 Junior College programs and 533 Senior College programs.

One function of the Cooperative Education Research Center is to keep track of the population of cooperative education programs as well as program characteristics. Some entries do not have complete or current information because survey responses were not received prior to publication. Other entries are incomplete because some programs in the planning stage have not yet determined their program characteristics. This year, special efforts were made by mail and telephone to contact all cooperative education programs not responding to the annual cooperative education program census since 1975. As a result, 44 programs were deleted from the computer file of cooperative education programs. The project was made possible by a U.S. Office of Education grant (OEG007702530).

I wish to give to give special thanks to Etsuko Kumai, Research Assistant, who is the Project Director, and to John A. Maguire and Carl K. Eynatian, Analyst/Programmers at Northeastern University's Administrative Computer Services, for their considerable efforts with this project.

Cooperative education is a unique plan of education which integrates classroom study with planned and supervised experiences in various learning situations. This educational pattern allows one to acquire practical skills as well as to be exposed to the reality of the world beyond the boundaries of the campus, and thus, enhance the self-awareness and direction of the individual.

It is called "cooperative education" because it is dependent upon the cooperation of outside agencies in combining to form a total education program. The interrelated experience and study components are carefully planned and supervised to produce optimum educational results. The following are examples of outcomes associated with participation in cooperative education.

--For the students who have a clear idea of their ultimate career goal, the off-campus assignments provide sequences of work with increasing responsibility to their chosen fields.

--For students who do not have a clear objective and who are seeking to orient themselves to the world of work, a series of assignments can be arranged to provide a breadth of experience.

--For students with limited finances, the earnings from their cooperative assignments are a means for them to obtain a college education which otherwise might be beyond their financial reach.

--For employers, cooperative education is a means for effectively pre-screening and recruiting future full-time employees less expensively than through traditional methods.

One of the great strengths of cooperative education is its flexibility. The basic concept of integrating work experience in an educational curriculum can be applied in many different ways. The administrative details can be designed to blend with the philosophy of the particular educational institution and the needs of the students to be served.

READING THE LIST OF COOPERATIVE EDUCATION PROGRAMS

In addition to listing colleges and universities with cooperative education programs, six categories of information about the institution and the program are provided when known. We do not have complete information for all programs. The categories are the following: (1) institution level; (2) the curricula which have the cooperative plan; (3) the length of the cooperative work term; (4) the number of work terms provided by the program; (5) the number of years required for the degree; (6) whether or not degree credit taking the place of credits earned through the classroom is given based on cooperative work experience.

The following key will assist in reading the information:

1. * - Cooperative education program is fully operational or recently put into operation.

2. Coop Enr: - Indicates the number of students enrolled in the cooperative education program, 1977-78 academic year. (Note: Coop Enr: is not listed when there are no figures available.)

3. Junior - Junior college, community college, or technical institute awarding the associate degree.
   Senior - Senior college or university awarding the baccalaureate degree.

4. Curriculum

   AGRIC = Agriculture and Natural Resources (animal and poultry sciences, livestock, plant and soil sciences)
   ART = Art (architecture, commercial art, communications, crafts, fine/performing arts)
   BUS = Business
   COMPUT = Computer Sciences
   EDUC = Education
   ENG = Engineering
   HEALTH = Health Professions
   HUMAN = Humanities
   NAT SC = Natural Sciences (biology, mathematics, physical sciences)
   SEC SC = Secretarial Sciences
   SOC SC = Social & Behavioral Sciences
   TECH = Technologies
   VOCAT = Vocational Arts (trade and industrial courses)

5. Length of Cooperative Work Term

< TERM = less than a full term
QUARTER = quarter system (12 or 13 weeks)
> TERM = semester/trimester system (16 weeks or more)
VARIES = length of work term varies among departments offering the cooperative education program and/or the students enrolled in the cooperative program.

6. # of terms = the number of cooperative work terms provided or required (Note: V indicates that the number of cooperative terms is variable; 8 indicates that the cooperative program provides eight or more work terms).

7. Years = the number of years required to earn the institution's undergraduate degree.

8. Credit

X = credit is awarded based upon cooperative work and credits earned take the place of those earned in the classroom (non-additive credit).

+ = credit is awarded based upon cooperative work but credits are added to those already required for the degree (additive credit).

B = credit is awarded based upon cooperative work, and either additive or non-additive credit is given depending upon the curriculum.

- = credit is not awarded for cooperative work experience.
